ELECTRIC MOTORS ON BIG VESSELS

A carefully prepared test of two Swedish sister ships, one driven by triple expansion steam engines and the other by electricity, shows that electric motors are most economical for ship propulsion.

The vessels were both of 2,225 tons displacement, and designed for a speed of 11 knots with the development of 900 indicated horsepower.

The coal consumption was the important point to be determined and in these trials it was guaranteed that the turbo-electrically equipped vessel should show a saving of 30 per cent over the triple-expansion engines.

This guarantee was fulfilled, for the turbo-electric power plant showed an economy of 35 per cent, the consumption being 0.4 kilo per indicated horsepower, the engines developing 975 horse power, and driving the vessels at an average speed of 11.88 miles per hour.

COLORADO EVIDENCE.

A well-known lawyer was trying to make clear to a legal student the significance of the term "colored evidence," meaning that evidence which has been tampered with.

"The best illustration I can think of came within my observation not long ago," said the lawyer. "A physician had said to a fair patient:

"Madam, you are a little run down. You need frequent baths and plenty of fresh air, and I advise you to dress in the coolest, most comfortable clothes, nothing stiff or formal."

"When the lady got home this is how she rendered to her husband the advice given to her by the doctor:

"He says I must go to the seashore, do plenty of motoring and get some new summer gowns."
